

CEZAR MURDERED BY HIS PALACE TREASON

More Bloodshed and Riots Reported in Realm.

By Private Leased Wire. St. Petersburg, June 29.—Fourteen police officers and four courtiers were killed in the palace massacre of Czar Nicholas, the result of an investigation into the recent massacre of Jews there.

By GEORGE FRAZER. Special Cable.—Copyright. St. Petersburg, June 29.—Treason and treachery have broken out in the palace. It is learned today that much alarm is felt by the czar at the discovery. Revolutionaries are at work among the servants in the palace, and have converted several.

There is a report today that the czar and the court will within a day or so remove to Tsarskoe-Selo because of these discoveries. Mutiny among the soldiers is constantly coming to light. Today the Czar's Life Guards, a palace regiment, revealed a startling condition. The Life Guards held a meeting and adopted resolutions declaring that whatever the czar did was right, and that the regiment would not agree to any more police duty involving the killing of the people.

From the Polish frontier comes the news that riots have taken place in several garisons, and some bloodshed is reported at Oboznie. Warsaw has been cut off from communication with St. Petersburg by telegraph, and also with Moscow. The cutting off of communications has caused great anxiety among many Russians. It is learned that six men have been condemned to die in Warsaw for an attack on a Jew.

Colonel Lermontoff, of the Uhlans, has been placed in command of the guards at Peterhof. It is denied that the revolutionaries have gained a foothold in the palace, and the report that the czar and his family are to leave Petrograd because of fear of the loyalty of the garrison is without foundation.

The palace at the Peterhof is connected with the fortress of Cronstadt, Viborg and Helsingfors, and with the warships in the gulf, thus insuring its complete isolation. During the telegraph operators' strike of last fall.

BATTLE SHIP EXPLOSION; ONE KILLED, EIGHT HURT. Special Cable.—Copyright. London, June 29.—An explosion on the battleship Essex at Plymouth killed one man and injured eight.

SPEED OF DEVIL WAGONS MUST BE REGULATED

Senator J. S. Albrooke proposes to curb the wild career of the "motoring devil wagons" on the public highways of Georgia. The Forty-fourth senatorial district, represented by him, embraces the counties of Walker, Dade and Chikamauga national park, with its magnificent peaks, lies within this district. And these smooth, level roads are especially inviting to the owners and drivers of these "devil cars," and they tear along at a terrific pace. "We've got lots of little red mules up here," says Albrooke, "and they don't cotton to them whizzing wagons a little bit. Why, you know them mules go so they either hear or smell them automobiles a mile away, and immediately try to climb the nearest tree. Surprising how near some of them can come to a tree."

The senator from the Forty-fourth district advocates regulating the speed of automobiles on highways outside of the cities to 10 miles an hour. He will draft and introduce a bill to that effect shortly.

STALLING SUIT IS BEING FRAUD

BASEBALL MANAGER'S WIFE CONVICTED OF TAKING $225 OF CAMPAIGN FUND. WANTS ALIMONY. Defendant Not Present When Suit Is Called Before Judge Pendleton. The suit for temporary alimony brought by Mrs. Belle White Stallings against George T. Stallings, the well-known baseball manager and manager of the Buffalo, N. Y., team, was begun in the superior court Friday afternoon, Judge Pendleton hearing the argument in chambers. Mrs. Stallings and her younger son were present. The defendant, George Stallings, was represented only by his counsel, R. L. Berner and Jack Hastings. The petitioner's counsel is Ellis, Wimshill & Ellis.

The suit for divorce entered May 17 by Mrs. Stallings, and the imprisonment of interest in Atlanta, owing to the prominence of the defendant, who has been well known in southern sporting circles for years. In this point the defendant, George Stallings, made several startling allegations, in which the co-respondent named was a woman known as "Nips," her real name not being in evidence.

The present hearing is merely for the purpose of deciding whether the petitioner shall be granted temporary alimony. She is living separate from her husband, though no divorce has been granted. The hearing will probably be completed in a few hours, and the decision will be taken under advisement.

In her petition filed May 17, Mrs. Stallings asserts that she married the defendant in 1910, and that the couple have two sons, George Vernon Stallings, aged 14, and Oliver White Stallings, aged 12. They have resided in Atlanta for the past three years. They were separated in December, 1915, and Mrs. Stallings alleges that since that time her husband has been guilty of infidelity.

The Mysterious "Nips." Mrs. Stallings alleges that her husband became infatuated with a woman of Buffalo, N. Y., who passes under the name of "Nips." She alleges that in December, 1915, or January, 1916, her husband visited various parts of the country in company with this woman, and that he has since then been in the habit of traveling with her. She alleges that the two took an automobile tour together, visiting Savannah and several points in Florida. She alleges that on January 3, 1916, the two occupied a room in the De Soto Hotel in Savannah and that on January 13 they were in the city of Atlanta. At the same time, the woman registering under an assumed name. She alleges that letters have come into her possession written by the woman to George T. Stallings, in which terms of affection and endearment were freely used.

In the original petition Mrs. Stallings asks a complete divorce, custody of her children and permanent alimony. She asserts that her husband is manager of the Young Men's Library Association and receives a large salary. On May 19 Judge Pendleton appointed Oliver White, a son of the petitioner, as receiver, and directed him to take charge of the funds to Stallings' credit in the Third National Bank and in the County Savings Bank. An order enjoining the banks from paying over such funds to Stallings was also issued.

The hearing of the suit for divorce will take place at the September term before a jury.
